PREAMBLE

This general report on the conduct of the 14 April, 2013 election of Senators is drawn up in accordance with the provisions of Section 26 (5) of the Electoral Code.

The report is intended to give a run-down of the whole organisational process fundamental to the conduct of the said election, while highlighting the different activities carried out by Elections Cameroon, in general, and the Directorate General of Elections, in particular.

The first part is centred on a chronological narration of the activities conducted before, during and after the election, and the second, on the various organisational and managerial actions taken within the context of these polls.

Just like in the past, we hope, through the present report, to put at the disposal of the reader, objective elements that may be used to appreciate the efforts invested by ELECAM and election stakeholders within the framework of these senatorial elections.

THE DIRECTOR GENERAL OF ELECTIONS,

MOHAMAN SANI TANIMOU

INTRODUCTION

In a bid to consolidate and modernise its democracy, Cameroon, on 14 April, 2013, held its first-ever election by indirect universal suffrage, namely: senatorial elections.

This election was organised following the publication of Decree No.2013/056 of 27 February 2013 convening the Electoral College and in keeping with the provisions of Law No. 2012/001 of 19 April 2012 relating to the Electoral Code.

The said political event, intended to put in place the first-ever Senate of Cameroon, took place within a newfound legal framework marked by the advent of the Electoral Code. This, after the 9 October 2011 Presidential election, constituted the second election to be organised by Elections Cameroon, ever since becoming operational and taking over the material organisation of elections in Cameroon.

Actually, in keeping with the provisions of the said Code, the Cameroonian lawmaker vested Elections Cameroon with missions, the most significant of which include:

a) As concerns the Electoral Board

- scrutinising candidacy papers and publishing the lists of candidates;
- controlling the preparation of election materials and documents within the deadlines laid down by law;
- ensuring compliance with the electoral law by all stakeholders of the electoral process;
- organising consultations with stake holders of the electoral process;
- putting in place some joint electoral commissions;

b) As concerns the Director General of Elections

- drawing up, managing, updating and keeping the national voter register;
- procuring and distributing election materials and documents;
- distributing, within the statutory time-limits, samples of ballot papers to the political parties taking part in the polls for campaign purposes;
- drawing up and publishing electoral registers;
- issuing and distributing voter cards;
- receiving candidacy papers;
- organising and managing polling stations;
- organising the training of electoral personnel;
- coordinating the work of observers accredited by the appropriate national authorities;
- coordinating all bodies responsible for election operations;
- forwarding election reports to the competent authorities.

The present report, which draws its substance from the activities carried out in execution of the above missions of ELECAM, gives a run-down of the actions effectively undertaken by the said institution during the pre-election, election and post-election phases. It revolves around 5 (five) parts.

Part I is devoted to preparations towards the election, notably:

- drawing up and updating of the voter register;
- preparation and production of election documents;
- deployment of election materials;
- pre-election information and sensitisation of electors.

Part II, relating to preliminaries and conduct of the election, obviously comprises 2 (two) chapters.

Chapter I, dwelling on preliminaries, reviews the following aspects:

- organisation and management of polling stations;
- drawing up, updating and publication of electoral registers;
- production and distribution of voter cards;
- drawing up and publication of the lists of polling stations;
- definition of conditions for the production and publication of election campaign documents;
- management of candidacies and related petitions;
- production of ballot and election campaign papers;
- constitution and safe dispatch of electoral kits;
- putting in place of local polling commissions;
- coordination of the work of election observers;
- election communication and sensitisation;
- field tours by Members of the Electoral Board.

Chapter II focuses on polling operations while pointing out the following:

- opening and closing of the polls;
- conduct of polling operations;
- vote counting.

Part III concentrates on the management of election disputes and the proclamation of results. It is made up of 3 (three) chapters: Chapter I relates to vote counting, verification and centralisation of results; Chapter II to the management of post-election disputes; and Chapter III to the proclamation of final results.

Part IV handles funding of the election while highlighting the key items for which funds were disbursed during the said election.

Finally, Part V, as its title indicates, is broken down into two chapters, with Chapter I dwelling on the difficulties encountered, and Chapter II proposing recommendations.

From a logical standpoint, the report ends with a conclusion that draws key lessons from the 14 April 2013 election of Senators and charts the way forward.

Certain cited texts, tables and graphs feature in the annexure to further clarify the reader by making available additional detailed information that could not have been presented in the body of this report without distorting the logical presentation of its content.

PART I

PREPARATIONS FOR THE ELECTION OF SENATORS

The following preparations were made by the Directorate General of Elections before the Electoral College was convened, notably, drawing up and updating of the voter register, preparation and production of election documents, deployment of election materials and pre-election information and sensitisation.

CHAPTER I

DRAWING UP AND UPDATING OF THE VOTER REGISTER

The voter register was drawn up in keeping with the combined provisions of Sections 222 (1) and 242 of the Electoral Code, which respectively provide that:
"Senators shall be elected in each Region by an Electoral College comprising regional and municipal councillors";
"Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 222 (1) above, where the Senate is put in place before Regions, the Electoral College for the election of Senators shall exclusively comprise municipal councillors".

Given the fact that Regions are yet to be put in place, drawing up the voter register for this election of Senators targeted municipal councillors in office only.

In this regard, the Director General of Elections instructed the branch officials of Elections Cameroon to get closer to the municipal councils under their respective jurisdictions, in view of collecting data derived from the twin legislative and municipal polls of 22 July, 2007, which witnessed the election of 10 632 municipal councillors across the national territory.

As concerns updating of the voter register, the data collected by ELECAM branch officials was processed at the central level in conformity with the relevant provisions contained in the Electoral Code.

The said processing took into account deletions justified by cases of death, loss of voting rights, ineligibility or incompatibility that had occurred since 2007.

At the conclusion of this exercise, the number of municipal councillors evolved from 10 632 to 10 025.

Having drawn up the voter register, the Directorate General of Elections turned to the preparation and production of certain election documents.

CHAPTER II

As essential and irreducible tools in the organisational chain of any election, election documents are elements whose absence, poor quality, shortage in stock or misappropriation can render polling stations non-operational, thereby out-rightly compromising the success of an election. This is all the more justified as the said documents have a direct impact on the vote.

In this context, the following were thus produced: envelopes of all sizes, election report forms, counting sheets, guides for local polling commission chairpersons and members, copies of the decision to lay down the organisation of polling stations...

In order to render polling stations effectively operational, they were furnished with election materials necessary for their smooth functioning.

CHAPTER III

DEPLOYMENT OF ELECTION MATERIALS

Election materials, here, refer to a variety of elements, whose use is indispensable in the polling station, as is the case with relevant election documents. This requirement of the electoral law has the advantage of guaranteeing certain fundamental principles of democracy, namely, the transparency and credibility of elections, freedom of choice, and secrecy of the vote.

The said materials included ballot boxes, polling booths, fabrics for polling booths, seals, disposal bags, indelible ink pots, calculators, lamps and identification badges for the chairpersons and members of local polling commissions.

However, it must be pointed out that election materials used in the 2011 Presidential election were again used in these Senatorial elections.

Such was the case with ballot boxes, polling booths, calculators, and even fabrics.

Substantial resources were put at the disposal of ELECAM Branches in view of the procurement of additional material as well as transportation of all the material.

CHAPTER IV

PRE-ELECTION INFORMATION AND SENSITISATION

This drive, which comprised a wealth of educational communication activities, had as priority target, the electorate, composed of municipal councillors.

For this purpose, simple and short messages were first of all conceived, and then media chosen for their diffusion. Thus, the choice was made, initially, for TV channels and radio stations having national coverage, for the printed media and for public billboards.

Unfortunately, where such a drive proved effective in urban areas, it still ran the risk of leaving a cross-section of the electorate on the sidelines, in this case municipal councillors, with a great number residing within rural areas deprived of access to the above-mentioned media.

In this light, the Directorate General of Elections, in the second instance, broadened the diffusion media paraphernalia to rural and community radio stations, reputed for addressing their audience in local languages, thereby making it easier for messages to be spread.

Finally, the two measures mentioned above were supplemented by a proximity information and sensitisation strategy, implemented by ELECAM branches.

Probably, were it not for the combination of these strategies, it is not certain that ultimately, all the senatorial electors, notably those residing within rural councils would have received information pertinent to their participation in the election. Moreover, these electors may not have contributed to the drawing up and updating of the voter register.

This information and sensitisation crowned the first phase of the electoral process, giving room to the effective holding of the senatorial elections on 14 April, 2013, subject to the accomplishment of several preliminaries.

PART II

PRELIMINARIES AND CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION OF SENATORS

This phase of the electoral process covers activities carried out as from when the Electoral College was convened by Presidential Decree No.2013/056 of 27 February 2013 (see copy attached under Annex No.1), up to the effective holding of the said election on 14 April, 2013.

Accomplishing these activities proved a formidable task, given that the Directorate General of Elections was expected to comply with a legal and an inflexible organisational time-frame.

Nonetheless, steering these preliminaries to a successful conclusion was essential to the conduct of polling operations.

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARIES

In terms of preliminary activities to polling operations, it was imperative to respectively ensure the:

- organisation and management of polling stations;
- drawing up, updating and publication of electoral registers;
- production and distribution of voter cards;
- drawing up and publication of the lists of polling stations;
- definition of conditions for the production and publication of election campaign documents;
- management of candidatures and resolution of related disputes;
- production of ballot and election campaign papers;
- constitution and safe dispatch of electoral kits;
- putting in place of local polling commissions;
- coordination of the work of election observers;
- election communication and sensitisation;
- field tours by Members of the Electoral Board.

SECTION 1: ORGANISATION AND MANAGEMENT OF POLLING STATIONS

Polling stations, as venues for the exercise of voting rights, constitute arenas par excellence for the electoral contest, hence, the importance of organising them properly.

That is why in keeping with the provisions of Section 26 (1) of the Electoral Code, the Director General of Elections signed Decision No.0643/ELECAM/DGE of 4 March 2013 to lay down the organisation of polling stations on the occasion of the election of Senators (see copy attached under Annex No. 2 in the present report).

The said Decision specified preliminaries to polling operations, arrangements for the conduct of polling operations, as well as those for vote counting.

Having set the rules and regulations governing activities within polling stations for all stakeholders, it was time to tackle the drawing up, updating and publication of electoral registers.

SECTION 2: DRAWING UP, UPDATING AND PUBLICATION OF ELECTORAL REGISTERS

Based on the voter register cited under Chapter 1 above, provisional electoral registers were drawn up in conformity with the legal provisions in force.

Such registers were made public when posted up at the level of the divisional and council branches of Elections Cameroon.

In due regard to the above, the Director General of Elections, through a press release (see copy attached under Annex No. 3), invited electors to consult the said registers in view of formulating, if necessary, before 8 March, 2013, their corresponding observations with a view to effecting the necessary corrections. It was understood that, beyond this deadline, the corresponding final electoral registers and voter cards would be produced and distributed.

Ultimately, after undergoing all the necessary corrections, the final register comprising 9 889 registered electors was drawn up in alphabetical order as well as per polling station, and then made public within the statutory time-limits, paving the way for the production and distribution of voter cards.

SECTION 3: PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF VOTER CARDS

On the basis of the final electoral registers produced under the above-mentioned conditions, the Directorate General of Elections proceeded with the production of voter cards, exclusively valid for this election of Senators.

In keeping with the provisions of Section 225 (1) of the Electoral Code, voter cards bore the following data on their holders: full name, date and place of birth, photograph, fingerprints, nature of the elective mandate, parentage, occupation and domicile or residence.

In total, 9 889 voter cards were produced corresponding to the number of registered electors and put at the disposal of ELECAM council branches for distribution.

The said distribution was carried out under the supervision of Divisional Branch Heads. A press release issued by the Director General of Elections on 18 March, 2013 (see copy attached under Annex No. 4 of the report), invited municipal councillors in office to withdraw their voter card at council branch offices as from 20 March, 2013.

Conversely, any card not withdrawn by the holder at the council branch of Elections Cameroon was as of 12 April, 2013, held at the disposal of the latter at the divisional branches of ELECAM within the corresponding polling stations.

Henceforth, the throttle for the material organisation of the election of Senators on 14 April, 2013 was directed towards drawing up and publishing the lists of polling stations.

SECTION 4: DRAWING UP AND PUBLICATION OF THE LISTS OF POLLING STATIONS

In accordance with the provisions of Section 228 of the Electoral Code, the Director General of Elections signed ten (10) decisions, each establishing the list of polling stations as well as the distribution of electors within the said stations in one of the regions of the country.

In terms of the number of polling stations per constituency, Adamawa had 11; Centre 34; East 14; Far North 25; Littoral 16; North 12; North-West 19; South 14; South-West 17and West 20, thereby representing a total of 182 polling stations spread across the national territory. The number of electors per polling station, on the other hand, revolved between 35 and 69.

It is worth noting that all the polling stations were accommodated by primary and secondary schools.

Having made the number of polling stations as well as the distribution of electors within the said stations known, the election institution then laid down conditions for the production and publication of election campaign documents.

SECTION 5: DEFINITION OF CONDITIONS FOR THE PRODUCTION AND PUBLICATION OF ELECTION CAMPAIGN DOCUMENTS

By virtue of the provisions of Section 87 (4) of the Electoral Code, the Director General of Elections signed Decision No.0655/ELECAM/DGE of 14 March 2013 to establish the maximum size of election campaign posters and to lay down conditions for the publication of election campaign documents(see copy attached under Annex No. 5 of the present report).

Thanks to this Decision, rules for the electoral contest were specified, sanctions emphasised, and the contenders put on an equal footing.

Henceforth abandoned to its fate, each political party contesting was expected, more than ever before, to deck itself out in all its finery for the purpose of seducing an electorate reputedly well-enlightened, thus very much abreast with realities, and therefore difficult to be manipulated.

Having defined the rules of the game regarding the production and publication of election campaign documents, Elections Cameroon then got down to the management of candidacies.

SECTION 6: MANAGEMENT OF CANDIDACIES

Management of candidacies for the 14 April 2013 election of Senators took the form of three essential phases:

- reception of candidacy papers;
- scrutiny of candidacy papers and publication of the lists of candidates;
- disputes relating to candidatures.

A) - Reception of candidacy papers

In keeping with the combined provisions of Sections 164, 165, 166 and 231 of the Electoral Code, candidacy papers were submitted either at the Directorate General of Elections, or at the level of the Divisional Branches of Elections Cameroon.

Nevertheless, it should be pointed out that most political parties waited till the closing date, which is the fifteenth day, starting from the date when the Electoral College was convened, to submit their candidacy papers.

In total, 8 (eight) political parties submitted candidacy papers for 40 (forty) lists of candidates (see details portrayed in the corresponding table attached under Annex No. 6).

After providing the candidates with the related submission receipts in keeping with the provisions of Section 164 (2) of the Electoral Code, the Directorate General of Elections transmitted the above-mentioned candidacy papers to the Electoral Board for scrutiny and publication of the lists of candidates authorised to take part in the said election.

B-) Scrutiny of candidacy papers and publication of the lists of candidates

In accordance with the provisions of Section 10 (2) of the Electoral Code, the Electoral Board scrutinised the candidacy papers received and, under Resolutions No.086 and No.087/ELECAM/CE of 20 March 2013, published the lists rejected and those accepted for the election of Senators of 14 April, 2013 (see copy of these resolutions attached under Annex No. 7).

Out of the 40 (forty) lists of candidacies scrutinised, 17 (seventeen) were accepted and 23 (twenty-three) rejected.

The rejections mentioned above gave rise to petitions before the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council.

C-) Management of disputes relating to candidacies

In keeping with the provisions of Section 125 (2) of the Electoral Code, the Director General of Elections notified the political parties concerned, of the above Resolution of the Electoral Board relating to the rejection of their candidacy papers.

The affected political parties subsequently lodged 15 (fifteen) petitions before the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council, requesting cancellation of the said Resolution (see the summary table of petitions filed before the Supreme Court attached under Annex No. 8).

After examining these petitions, the Supreme Court, during a public hearing held on 29 March 2013, rejected 12 (twelve) of these petitions.

Consequently, the lists of candidacies submitted respectively by UPC, FSNC, NADP and MDR were finally disqualified, while those of CPDM were reinstated within the Far North and East electoral constituencies. The list of candidacies submitted by NUDP within the Far North electoral constituency was also reinstated.

In conclusion, out of the 8 (eight) political parties that initially submitted lists of candidates, only the CPDM, SDF, NUDP and CDU were admitted to contest in the election, representing a total of 20 (twenty) lists of candidacies accepted (see details portrayed in the corresponding table attached under Annex No. 9 of the present report).

Having ruled on the petitions relating to candidacies, it was then time for pressing matters, in this case, the production of ballot and election campaign papers.

SECTION 7: PRODUCTION OF BALLOT AND ELECTION CAMPAIGN PAPERS

Ballot and election campaign papers were produced in conformity with the provisions of Section 88 (1) of the Electoral Code which enact: "The Directorate General of Elections shall, for every candidate, party or list of candidates running in the election, print a number of ballot papers equivalent to the number of electors registered, plus one quarter thereof, as well as campaign ballot papers".

Prior to the production of ballot and election campaign papers, the Director General of Elections signed Decision No.0656/ELECAM/DGE of 21 March 2013 establishing the sizes of the said ballot and campaign papers (see copy attached under Annex No. 10 of this report).

Conversely, it is worthwhile pointing out that the final rulings of the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council, on petitions relating to candidacies, were passed quite late in the night of 29 March, 2013.

Despite the late hour at which the above rulings were passed, the Directorate General of Elections took all necessary measures to ensure that as from the early hours of 30 March, 2013, the political parties concerned were able to gain possession of their respective election campaign ballots as prescribed by law.

The equitable provision of the said political parties with this valuable document enabled them to launch their campaigns on the same Saturday, 30 March 2013 in keeping with the corresponding provisions.

After producing the ballot and election campaign papers in enough quality and quantity, priority was then directed towards finalising the constitution of electoral kits for safe dispatch to polling stations.

SECTION 8: CONSTITUTION AND SAFE DISPATCH OF ELECTORAL KITS

The electoral kits of polling stations, used during the election of Senators, had the advantage and particularity of being fairly stripped down, given the restricted number of electors per polling station as well as the fact that certain election materials were kept at the level of ELECAM branches in the aftermath of the 9 October 2011 presidential election.

The final electoral kit was progressively constituted in two phases, depending on the rhythm at which the constituent elements were made available, namely, printed documents expected to be supplied by our printing partners who had to grapple with production constraints.

During the first phase, only part of the constituent elements of the final kit were prepared and dispatched to the polling stations created. This initial package, identical for all the constituencies, contained: envelopes of all sizes; indelible ink pots; glue pots; copies of election report forms; copies of counting sheets; copies of the local polling commission guide; stickers; seals; disposal bags; fabrics for polling booths; copies of the electoral register for posting up and for signature; copies of Decision No.0643/ELECAM/DGE of 04 March 2013 relating to the organisation of polling stations; identification badges for the chairperson and members of local polling commissions.

The second and final phase was carried out after the delivery of ballot papers to the Directorate General of Elections. This time, the content of the package, composed mainly of ballot papers, varied depending on the political parties contesting in the constituency concerned. This was completed by a copy of the Electoral Code meant for ELECAM branch officials.

All this material was transported by air to the North and Far North constituencies, and by land, using suitable vehicles, for the rest of the national territory.

It should be indicated that transportation of the said material was secured by the devoted, vigilant and dissuasive presence of police escorts made available by the special State services competent in the field.

Even then, the preliminaries were not yet completed since local polling commissions still had to be put in place.

SECTION 9: PUTTING IN PLACE OF LOCAL POLLING COMMISSIONS

Prior to putting in place of local polling commissions, the Divisional Branch Heads of ELECAM signed 58 (fifty-eight) decisions approving their composition in accordance with the provisions of Section 54 (3) of the Electoral Code.

Members of these local polling commissions were then trained. The said members had to be fully conversant with the law governing the electoral process as well as the polling procedure, in order to ensure a hitch-free poll, according to the standards of election operations.

Pragmatically, the training received sought to enable these members to understand contents of the decision laying down the organisation of polling stations and to master the polling station operation guide. Ultimately, simulations were conducted to bring all the participants up to the same level in terms of operational ability.

It is at this juncture that the chairpersons of local polling commissions received from the Divisional Branch Heads, the election documents necessary to the management of their respective polling stations. They were then well-equipped to accomplish their tasks, the least of which was how to manage the presence of election observers.

SECTION 10: COORDINATION OF THE WORK OF ELECTION OBSERVERS

Thanks to the evolution of democracy in the world, election observation has become a categorical imperative. It is a channel through which objective indicators are gleaned, enabling an appraisal of the credibility, sincerity or transparency of an election alongside the degree of individual freedoms that are particular to the political and social environment underlying the said election. That is why this activity is arousing much passion at the international as well as national level.

A few days to the election, in the interest of this report, 3 788 (three thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight) observers were accredited, representing 3 661 national observers and 127 international observers including 36 from the African Union (AU). Some 69 civil society institutions and organisations were represented in this throng (see the list of institutions and organisations accredited attached under Annex No. 11).

In accordance with the law, the Ministry of Territorial Administration and Decentralisation (MINADT) is entrusted with the mission of accrediting all these national and international observers directly, after consultation with the Ministry of External Relations (MINREX).

MINATD effectively accomplished the above mission while endeavouring to provide the observers with a "Code of Conduct". This document, whose content features in Annex No. 12, sets out guidelines for the work of observers.

The Director General of Elections is, however, responsible for coordinating the work of these observers on the field. To pave the way for a successful coordination, he held a meeting with these observers on 12 April, 2013, in which almost half of the duly accredited institutions took part.

The meeting allowed for an overview of the upcoming election in terms of its nature, substance of the electorate, number of polling stations, opening and closing hours for the election, and the security measures taken. Moreover, it provided an opportunity for having access to the location of all the polling stations and the addresses of the various ELECAM branches.

This working session also helped to mark out the attitude expected of election observers and provided satisfactory answers to questions asked by the participants, including issues relating to communication.

SECTION 11: ELECTION COMMUNICATION AND SENSITISATION

Though it is true that the Electoral College for the election of Senators on 14 April 2013, was restricted, easily identifiable, highly graded and compelled to vote by law under pain of losing their mandate, it was no less important for ELECAM to ensure that each of the said electors accessed any information regarding his/her effective participation in the election.

In this particular case, the success and effectiveness of the electoral communication and awareness drive could be appraised based on turnout for the election. In consequence, the Directorate General of Elections adopted a communication strategy targeting municipal councillors, unique electors for this election. Large-size posters were conceived and displayed at strategic places and localities. Radio and TV spots were also aired for this same purpose.

The short but expressive messages urged the said electors not to miss out on the opportunity to go down in history, for any reason whatsoever. A case in point is the following message: "Municipal councillors, you have an appointment with history. Go cast your vote!"

Similarly, insidious but highly effective media hype, kick-started by Council Branch Heads during the consultation of the provisional electoral registers posted up at their council branch offices and intensified during the distribution of voter cards within the same offices, was pursued non-stop among municipal councillors up to the beginning of the election campaign period.

The fact that most of these councillors have their residence or, at least their base, in the council, facilitated this proximity communication.

At the tail-end of the long and demanding preliminary activities carried out by the Directorate General of Elections, it should be specified that the Members of the Electoral Board, equally worked without respite.

SECTION 12: FIELD TOURS BY MEMBERS OF THE ELECTORAL BOARD

Within the Electoral Board of Elections Cameroon, preliminaries to the conduct of the election of Senators were marked, among others, by field tours undertaken by its Members.

The purpose of such tours was, on the one hand, to ascertain the effective dispatch of the election materials and documents, within the statutory time-limits and to hold working sessions with the other stakeholders of the electoral process, on the other hand, in a bid to ensure compliance with the electoral law by all stakeholders of the said process.

That is how the polling stations initially located within Government Bilingual Primary School (G B P S) of Kumbo in the North-West Region were, for instance, relocated to Government Bilingual High School (G B H S) of the same locality, to ensure law and order.

Having completed the preliminaries, the Directorate General of Elections could now get ready for polling operations.

CHAPTER II

POLLING OPERATIONS

Polling operations refer to all electoral activities carried out on Election Day, the importance of which is well-established.

Undeniably, Election Day reflects the maturity of the electoral process. It is, first of all, the right time for contenders to reap the fruits of their efforts and of their trust, through the intermediary of voters. It also spells out an opportunity for voters to exercise their right to vote while trusting to their conscience. It finally, represents one of the rare opportunities for voters to levy a positive, neutral or negative sanction on the contenders, thanks to the vote.

The following sections give a run-down of the opening and closing of the polls, conduct of the election and vote counting.

SECTION 1: OPENING AND CLOSING OF THE POLLS

The opening and closing hours of the election of Senators held on 14 April 2013, are prescribed under the provisions of Section 2 of Decree No.2013/056 of 27 February 2013 (see copy attached under Annex No. 1 of this report). In concrete terms, polling stations are expected to open at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

But for a few exceptions, an analysis of the election reports derived from polling stations reveals that the opening and closing hours prescribed for polling stations were scrupulously respected in all the constituencies across the country.

SECTION 2: CONDUCT OF POLLING OPERATIONS

As a crucial stage in the material organisation of elections, management of polling constitutes one of the most essential electoral tasks, though also the highest source of worries for it requires the greatest care and vigilance at every instance.

That is why Decision No.0643/ELECAM/DGE of 04 March 2013 is quite explicit on the way polling stations should be organised. For the information of all and sundry, the said Decision specifies all common election materials, the use intended for the said materials, the manner they must be arranged, voting formalities, the role of the chairperson as well as members of local polling commissions during polling.

The Directorate General of Elections went an extra mile, making this Decision available at all polling stations, by including it in the constitution of electoral kits.

Moreover, training workshops were previously organised for the purpose of drilling the members of local polling commissions in the practical procedure for the conduct of the vote.

After that, Elections Cameroon could rest assured regarding a successful conduct of the vote.

Events later justified such optimism given that on 14 April, 2013, the ELECAM electoral machinery was deployed in a professional manner in all the polling stations.

Echoes gathered from the field indicated a smooth conduct of the vote. Even the political parties that took part in the election, often highly critical of ELECAM, acknowledged an improvement as from the very next day and lauded this ray of light that has streaked along to rekindle an erstwhile jaded recollection of elections in Cameroon.

Following this description of how the vote unfolded, focus then shifted to vote counting, the next phase in the electoral process as prescribed in the corresponding legal provisions.

SECTION 3: VOTE COUNTING

As the electoral operation dreaded by political parties, vote counting is notorious for unveiling the secrecy of votes and for crushing well-founded or even legitimate hopes. Hence, the silence that usually reigns after polling, until the results are made known.

In a good number of polling stations and in conformity with the corresponding legal provisions, any voter who so desired was admitted to observe the vote counting exercise. As devoted militants of their political party within their constituency or sympathisers for the occasion of a different political party due to the disqualification of their lists, none of the electors could keep their calm.

The results obtained in each polling station were instantly made public in conformity with the corresponding legal provisions, prompting voters whose choice had prevailed, to jump for joy with the feeling of having accomplished their mission, and those whose choice had been overwhelmed, to contain that peculiar subtle and nagging pain resulting from hopes irremediably dashed.

The said results were immediately recorded in the respective election reports, drawn up and signed by the chairpersons as well as members of the local polling commissions concerned, and then forwarded as prescribed by law.

The on-the-spot publication of these results obtained within the polling stations spelled the end of polling operations. The way was thus paved for the proclamation of results following the management of post-election disputes.

PART III

MANAGEMENT OF ELECTION DISPUTES AND PROCLAMATION OF RESULTS

Within the context of democratic apprenticeship like that of Cameroon, and beyond that, in the wake of an election preceding the putting in place of a high-status institution like the Senate, it would have been far-fetched to await an outcome directly dictated by the ballot box, without making a detour to the courtroom.

And yet, the restricted number of voters per polling station as well as that of the political parties that took part in the election of Senators on 14 April 2013, and even the limited number of constituencies, predicted an exception.

Since habits die hard, exceptionally, there was none. Five (05) petitions were submitted before the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council, calling for cancellation of the election in certain constituencies.

However, the said petitions had no influence on the vote counting, verification and centralisation of results.

CHAPTER I

VOTE COUNTING, VERIFICATION AND CENTRALISATION OF RESULTS

The above-mentioned election operations were carried out respectively by the local polling commissions, the regional supervisory commissions and the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes.

The local polling commissions were devoted, on the one hand, to the organisation and monitoring of polling operations, and on the other, to the initial count of votes cast in favour of each political party that took part in the election.

These commissions fulfilled their missions by the book to the extent that very few errors in calculation were discovered and corrected by the regional supervisory commissions.

As concerns the regional supervisory commissions, their composition was approved by Decision No.0010/ELECAM/PCE of 1 April 2013 (see copy attached under Annex 13 of this report).

Chaired by a judge of the Court of Appeal, each of these commissions respectively comprised 3 (three) representatives of the administration appointed by the Governor; 3 (three) representatives of Elections Cameroon appointed by the Chairperson of the Electoral Board; and 1 (one) representative of each political party contesting.

These commissions accomplished their missions within the statutory time-limits, notably the centralisation and compilation of votes as well as verification of the vote counts, on the basis of the election reports derived from polling stations.

The results of the work of these commissions were forwarded to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes in conformity with the corresponding legal provisions.

With respect to the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes, its composition was approved by Resolution No.0089/ELECAM/CE of 1 April, 2013 (see copy attached under Annex No.14)

From 17 to 19 April, 2013, this Commission carried out vote compilation at national level and rectified certain material errors in the vote count found in some reports forwarded by the regional supervisory commissions.

At the end of this working exercise, the National Commission for the Final Counting of Votes drew up a corresponding report that was transmitted to the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council.

Even so, the scene was not yet set for the proclamation of the final results, with the Supreme Court summoned to rule over five (05) petitions submitted for partial cancellation of the election.

CHAPTER II

MANAGEMENT OF POST-ELECTION DISPUTES

Despite the smooth conduct of polling operations observed during this election of Senators, the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council, received 5 (five) petitions for partial cancellation of the said election, 3 (three) of which were from NUDP for the Adamawa, Far North and Littoral constituencies respectively, and 2 (two) others submitted by CDU for the West Region constituency.

The grievances of CDU centred on defamation and violation of the secrecy of the vote, while those of NUDP alleged the non-drawing up of electoral registers in alphabetical order, the absence of scrutineers in polling stations, and the transparent nature of the small-size envelopes used in polling stations during this election.

All the same, the hearing convened for the examination of these petitions held on Friday 26 April, 2013 at the Supreme Court crushed the hopes of the petitioners. In this regard, at the end of some forty minutes of hearing, the Supreme Court declared the petition submitted by CDU in the West Region inadmissible, for lack of specific facts and insufficient means alleged.

In a little more than three hours, the petition submitted by NUDP in the Adamawa Region was declared admissible but rejected, for the said political party failed to produce enough proof to substantiate its allegations.

On the other hand, in its written and oral submission of evidence, the Directorate General of Elections proved that the small-size envelopes produced on the occasion of this election respected the same technical specifications across the national territory, thus, those used in the Adamawa constituency were no different.

As a matter of fact, the internal parts of these envelopes were all stained with a dark blue colour, rendering them perfectly opaque.

In conclusion, the NUDP, strangely, announced the withdrawal of its petition in the Far North constituency in Court.

Having ruled on the post-election petitions, attention could now turn to the proclamation of the final results of this election.

CHAPTER III

PROCLAMATION OF RESULTS

Admittedly, the convocation of the Electoral College on 27 February 2013 nursed ambitions, inasmuch as the election campaign provided an opportunity to make every effort towards realising such ambitions, and the polling operations of 14 April 2013 fanned hopes. But the proclamation of results on 29 April 2013 unlocked the door to glory only for some.

With each candidate having a clear idea of his/her fate, the main interest in the proclamation session then boiled down to its solemn nature.

The presiding official, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, with the usual grave voice, disclosed the content of the election results proclamation report.

It read as follows:

- number of polling stations: 182;
- number of registered voters: 9 889;
- effective voters: 9 785 including 149 by proxy;
- abstentions: 104;
- percentage of participation: 98.95%;
- blank ballots: 265;
- votes validly cast: 9 520;
- votes validly cast in favour of CPDM: 7 018, representing 73.72% for 56 seats won;
- votes validly cast in favour of SDF: 1 684, representing 17.69% for 14 seats won;
- votes validly cast in favour of CDU: 235, representing 2.47% for 0 seat won;
- votes validly cast in favour of NUDP: 583, representing 6.12% for 0 seat won.

In view of these results, the following substantive and alternate candidates were declared effectively elected by the Supreme Court, sitting in place of the Constitutional Council.

Other data relating to these results is portrayed under Annex No. 15 of this report in the form of tables and graphs.

We must acknowledge that it is not possible to obtain such a clear return on an election, more so within deadlines, without a minimum of funds.

PART IV

FUNDING

Owing to their coverage of the national territory, elections always require a fairly expensive organisational machinery and logistics.

This is especially true as within the framework of the organisation of this election of Senators, and in keeping with the provisions of Section 227 (4) of the Electoral Code, the State is expected to defray expenses relating to the participation of members of the Electoral College in the vote.

In this regard, the lump sum allocated to each elector stood at CFA 50 000 (fifty thousand) francs in conformity with Decree No.2013/056 of 27 February 2013 (see copy attached under Annex 16 of the present report).

However, given the existence of a stock of election materials procured on the occasion of the Presidential election of 9 October, 2011, a budget worth close to CFA 1 510 000 000 francs was prepared, approved and finally funded by the State of Cameroon through the Ministry of Finance. This budget covered the following key expenditure items:

- Assumption of expenses relating to the participation of municipal councillors in the election;
- procurement of the various inputs and consumables indispensable to the production of election documents such as: ballot and election campaign papers, election report forms, counting sheets, envelopes of all sizes, electoral registers, voter cards, packaging cartons;
- provision of polling stations with stationeries including indelible ink pots, seals, glue pots, identification badges, disposal bags, fabrics for polling booths, etc.,
- printing of election documents with the help of our printing partners;
- conveyance of election documents and materials towards all the polling stations scattered over the country;
- pre-election and election information campaign;
- training of members of local polling commissions;
- funding of activities of the Electoral Board;
- functioning of joint electoral commissions;
- payment of bonuses and diverse fringe benefits to personnel;
- drawing up and printing of the general report on the conduct of this election.

It goes without saying that any human enterprise as exacting as the material organisation of an election cannot be accomplished without encountering difficulties, which may give rise to several recommendations aimed at improving the electoral process as a whole.

PART V

DIFFICULTIES AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Even though the election of Senators held on 14 April 2013 in Cameroon mobilised a restricted electorate, a limited number of constituencies and less cumbersome logistics, as compared to the Presidential election of 9 October 2011, its organisation was not a mean feat. In the organisation of elections, just like in the accomplishment of any multi-dimensional and widely challenging human enterprise, unforeseen problems may arise to undermine or render such a task more complex.

CHAPTER I

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED

Though not particularly numerous within the context of this election, the difficulties encountered unfailingly put the organisational bases or splendour of the election to a severe test, thereby straining the nerves of ELECAM officials.

Firstly, the voter register drawn up by Elections Cameroon, was continuously updated, up to the eve of the election, owing to the death of electors occurring here and there, or, as was the case in the North-West Region, in order to take into account the voting rights of certain electors who had, in the meantime, regained their freedom.

Secondly, the completion of polling operations in most polling stations, as early as mid-day in most polling stations, subjected members of the local polling commissions concerned to a gruelling 6 (six) hour wait prior to the official closing of the polls set for 6 p.m.

Thirdly, the lack of collaboration from certain councils, which turned a deaf ear to the explicit request of Elections Cameroon to provide all data relating to their municipal councillors, did not facilitate the drawing up of the electoral registers.

Fourthly and finally, the coincidence of deadlines prescribed by the Electoral Code for carrying out certain electoral activities can, at the very best, impede the process, and at the very worst, lead to its failure.

Such are some of the constraints that, if overcome, will go a long way to improving the organisation of elections in Cameroon and enhancing the credibility of the electoral system of the country. Thus, the subsequent suggestions fall in line with such a vision.

CHAPTER II

RECOMMENDATIONS

• For future direct or indirect elections, it would be imperative to set the opening hour at 8 (eight) a.m. and the closing hour at 4 (four) p.m. In this way, vote counting operations may be carried out between 4 (four) and 6 (six) p.m. while daylight is still on.

• Election stakeholders, notably political parties and the Civil Society, must train, educate and sensitise citizens-electors on the electoral process, in view of the upcoming legislative and municipal elections.

• The discrepancies in the Electoral Code mentioned above deserve correction.

Having almost reached the end of the present report, it is worth noting that a consideration of these proposals will enable our nation to firmly keep on perfecting its electoral system.

CONCLUSION

Undeniably, the election of Senators held on 14 April, 2013 in Cameroon took place against a backdrop of calm and transparency, enabling the country to equip itself with the elected component of its first-ever Senate.

This political event enabled both national and international opinion to ascertain the determination of Elections Cameroon to leave its indelible marks in the organisation of elections by playing its role, without any exaggeration.

In this regard, after its successful baptism of fire during the Presidential election of 9 October 2011, on the one hand, and meeting the challenge of managing the recompilation of electoral registers, on the other, Elections Cameroon was given the opportunity, through the organisation of this election of Senators, to show proof before the national political class as a whole, of the fact that the lessons drawn from its tottering steps have been well-assimilated.

Despite the honours award obtained by the institution for the perfect organisational mastery of the said election, Elections Cameroon has no intention of resting on its laurels, given that the twin legislative and municipal polls, certainly more complex, are looming on the horizon.

The most fervent wish of ELECAM is that, stakeholders in every election should lend the institution, the sincere collaboration and support essential to the successful accomplishment of its mission, thereby contribute to improving the electoral process in Cameroon.
